

By the Kansas State Historical Society

Building a Dugout

Some settlers lived where it was very dry.
They built homes by digging a hole in the ground.
Dugouts were dirty and small.
Bugs and snakes would crawl into the house.
Most dugouts were only one room.

